

U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development – Articles of Interest to Planners

HUD User offers APA chapters use of recent relevant articles for your readership. As you may be aware, HUD User, the online clearinghouse for HUD's Office of Policy Development and Research (PD&R), is the primary source for federal government reports, forums, statistics, and articles on housing policy and programs, building technology, economic development, urban planning, and other housing-related topics.

PD&R is pleased to extend the following list of informative articles to the chapters of APA for reprint in their newsletters, as many planners have expressed an interest in affordable housing, policy, and community development issues. Please review the titles below and let us know if you would like to share any or all of them in your newsletter. These articles are in the public domain and free for use, but please note HUD User as the source.
